

FUSION - Raising a bilingual child in a two-language household

Guide à l'intention des couples exogames

Exogamous couples' guide to the francophone education world

Fusion is an English-language guide to the world of minority francophone education in Canada. It's intended for mixed francophone/non-francophone couples, and is also recommended for educators, administrators and elected officials.

Complete with illustrations, Fusion takes a straightforward, often humorous look at many of the issues that face non-francophone parents of children whose roots include French language and culture.

As a non-francophone parent, you will discover answers to questions you might have regarding your children's education as well as tips on what you can do at home, in community and in your children's school or preschool:

- What language(s) should we speak to our children?
- What options do we have for their schooling?
- What are the goals of francophone education?
- Will my youngsters be bilingual if they attend a francophone school or preschool?
- How can I play a role in my children's French-language education?
- What should I expect of the francophone school/preschool system?
- Why does the francophone system have to be so... French?

Ce guide rédigé en anglais est une ressource unique au pays.

Fusion répond aux besoins d'accompagnement du parent non-francophone d'un couple exogame.

Cette ressource suggère des outils et offre des pistes et des informations pour répondre aux questions que se posent les parents sur l'éducation scolaire et préscolaire en français de leurs enfants.
